BACKGROUND: The devastating flood at the end of 1988 engulfed large landscape of the country causing huge damage of lives and properties, which also badly affected to the lives of the peoples in Sirajganj district that situated on the bank of the most treacherous river Jamuna. The regular information is collected using various tools and techniques following the participatory monitoring process. The monitoring unit interviewed various stakeholders including beneficiaries, local administrations and the UP. They produce reports based on the field findings and submit it to the management. The management takes appropriate measures where necessary. The progress is also monitored/review in the monthly staff coordination meetings held at organization's head/project office, which is documented in meeting minutes and circulated at field offices. Project experience sharing workshops are also organized with different stakeholders to exchange views and produce recommendations.

The following mechanisms are followed in monitoring and supervision the project:

Research and Documentation: The periphery of NDP is developing day by day. It believes in changes and likes to adopt the things which have proven good, more effective and user friendly. There are many success as well as failure history in the way, in which different programmes are implementing. To promote the successful interventions as well as minimizing the failures it needs to learn the reason behind it. It helps promoting the best learning experience/practices, upgrade NDP's service delivery thus the project participants become more benefited. Likely, minimization of the failures save the resources thus makes the programmes cost effective. Further, it gives appropriate directions for project designing and expansions. The 'Research and Documentation Unit' has established in 2010, headed by the Manager (R&D). The unit is responsible to document all programme performances and successful events as publications like- book-lets, case studies, magazines and reports. The publications help others to learn the best learning practices. NDP also have a good collection of photographic and video documentation, preserved in head/project offices.

Evaluation: In most of the project at the beginning, a baseline survey/FGD is conducted to know the present situation for developing the database. In general the evaluation for a particular programme/project (based on the dimension of activities and importance) is done through appointing external expertise/firms. Depending on duration of the project, sometimes, either annual, mid-term or end evaluation is done. The evaluation documents/reports are kept in the organization's head office thus analyzed by the senior management. The best learning practices are considered in designing of any project in the next or required modification in the project is made based on the recommendations.

Reporting : MIS information is regularly collected at field level using prescribed formats on a daily/weekly basis as per needs of the project and compiled on weekly/monthly basis primarily in the branch/project offices, which again compiled by the programme/project chiefs to produce monthly reports and sending it to the management/development partners/donors as per their requisite. The Annual Report of NDP is prepared based on the performance of all programme/projects supported with case studies, impact analysis and photographic evidences. Project closing reports are also made at the end of the projects.

General Management: The overall management of the organization is guided by the approved constitution. General Committee (GC) is the highest body of NDP. It consists of twenty-nine members from different professionals. The general committee elects the Executive Committee (EC) for a period of three years. Presently, there are seven members in the executive committee. It performs all responsibilities on behalf of the general committee. The EC appoints the Executive Director (ED), the chief executive officer (CEO) of the organization. He is responsible for overall management and keeping contact with the donor agencies besides, there is a five-member advisory committee to advise the EC and ED in policy matters. There is programme operation division headed by Director (Programme) and the planning monitoring research & evaluation division is headed by Director (PRM). The micro-finance programme (MFP) represents the core programme unit and all other projects included in development programme unit; likely the PRM division has research & documentation (R&D) unit and monitoring & evaluation (M&E) unit.
